

Note: Written on your candy bar are the words, "Court reporters shouldn't be butterfingers." The first line, KROERTS, is a brief form for "court reporters." The second line, SHAOUPBT, is "shouldn't." The third line, PWE, stands for "be." Makes sense, huh? The fourth line, PWURT, is "butter." Although it's two syllables, we can "invert the R" to write it in one stroke. Then the last two lines are the steno for "fingers."

Note: Written on your candy bar are the words, "Court reporters shouldn't be butterfingers." The first line, KROERTS, is a brief form for "court reporters." The second line, SHAOUPBT, is "shouldn't." The third line, PWE, stands for "be." Makes sense, huh? The fourth line, PWURT, is "butter." Although it's two syllables, we can "invert the R" to write it in one stroke. Then the last two lines are the steno for "fingers."

Note: Written on your candy bar are the words, "Court reporters shouldn't be butterfingers." The first line, KROERTS, is a brief form for "court reporters." The second line, SHAOUPBT, is "shouldn't." The third line, PWE, stands for "be." Makes sense, huh? The fourth line, PWURT, is "butter." Although it's two syllables, we can "invert the R" to write it in one stroke. Then the last two lines are the steno for "fingers."

Note: Written on your candy bar are the words, "Court reporters shouldn't be butterfingers." The first line, KROERTS, is a brief form for "court reporters." The second line, SHAOUPBT, is "shouldn't." The third line, PWE, stands for "be." Makes sense, huh? The fourth line, PWURT, is "butter." Although it's two syllables, we can "invert the R" to write it in one stroke. Then the last two lines are the steno for "fingers."

Note: Written on your candy bar are the words, "Court reporters shouldn't be butterfingers." The first line, KROERTS, is a brief form for "court reporters." The second line, SHAOUPBT, is "shouldn't." The third line, PWE, stands for "be." Makes sense, huh? The fourth line, PWURT, is "butter." Although it's two syllables, we can "invert the R" to write it in one stroke. Then the last two lines are the steno for "fingers."

Note: Written on your candy bar are the words, "Court reporters shouldn't be butterfingers." The first line, KROERTS, is a brief form for "court reporters." The second line, SHAOUPBT, is "shouldn't." The third line, PWE, stands for "be." Makes sense, huh? The fourth line, PWURT, is "butter." Although it's two syllables, we can "invert the R" to write it in one stroke. Then the last two lines are the steno for "fingers."